Final stage of Design MTS project for sustainability in the machine tool sector

Since its launch in July 2013, the DESIGN-MTS project has offered a European CSR and sustainability platform for the machine tool industry. Specifically, key issues for the sector such as skills and training, life-long learning and energy-efficiency have been successfully addressed.

A significant milestone has been reached with a wealth of information and resources developed over the duration of the project now available including best practices, guidelines, training and a help desk to provide information, guidance, support and consultation to MTS enterprises before, during, and after the CSR adoption process. Resources are available here.

The project results are the culmination of various successful collaborations between DESIGN-MTS and companies, research centers, universities and associations. In advance of his attendance at the event, Stefan Crets, Executive Director of CSR Europe said "CSR Europe is proud to have played its part in this project dedicated to raising CSR awareness within the machine tool sector. The common platform for companies, and the sharing of best practices and experiences goes a long way to the development of sustainable solutions and securing a robust and viable industry into the future".
